"BEAUTIFUL

SITUATION"

—is the fair city of Glendale, and newcomers here praise the handiwork of man that has added to the natural charm of this section of the South.

We are proud of our contribution to the beauty and attractiveness of Glendale and surrounding cities. Many fair structures have risen here in the past years under our supervision and every building we have constructed has added to our prestige as contractors there is not one of which we are ashamednot one in which we failed to put our best selves into the building and carried out our contracts faithfully and to the letter. All this is known to those with whom we have had business dealings and we want the man who is going to build to know it too.

We are busy and do not need to solicit business but we want the new people of Glendale to know that we are reliable contractors and that many of the beautiful homes and public buildings of Glendale are our work.

"We are banded together to make more loyal, more contented, more united Americans, and we must give earnest study to the different phases of our problem. We have not understood foreigners. We must find a point of contact between them and ourselves, and learn just what contributions they bring to our civilization," she said. As expressing the spirit of Americanization, the vision of "Tomorrow" she presented with much feeling the story of The Feast of Nations by Zona Gale.

"Despite what has been done, we feel that we are still on the threshold of the major part of the question, this involving an increase in storage capacity of fuel stations and additional tank steamships for transporting oil to them. We must also take into account the fact that we must now carry oil to our Atlantic seaports not only from Mexico but from the Texas and Louisiana fields as well. A group of little boys impersonated Indians in a war dance, and Howard Rich and Robert Smellie gave a comical musical sketch. Wilmot Parcher gave a highly interesting and original account of Christmas in Vermont 65 years ago, which was most interesting. Dr. C. C. Buck gave two vocal solos of great beauty and artistic merit. MICROBES WILL POSE FOR MOVIE CAMERA

The development of scientific research through the use of moving pictures has taken another step forward. Not only is it possible to show in motion pictures the growth of plant life, and uncover heretogore unexplored fields in botany, biology, zoology, physiology, etc., but with the aid of cinema-microscopy, the innermost secrets of life itself are bared and the public can now see on the screen many miraculous experiments which heretofore were only accessible to the medical profession.

EXCITING MOMENTS

To be mistaken for a cattle rustler and pursued by a posse that kept the atmosphere hot with bulwas the experience of Pete Morrison, the Universal western star, in making one of his recent photodramas.

Although many exciting events have overtaken the player, he counts the cattle rustling episode as his most thrilling experience. The story being filmed at the time required that the entire company be taken to the Mexican border at Yuma, Arizona. Although arrangements had been made with a ranch owner to drive away a herd of his cattle, no arrangements had been made with the sheriff, so when Morrison was seen to drive the cattle out of the rancher's corral, the alarm was spread and a posse quickly formed.

Innocently driving the cattle before him for the benefit of the camera, Morrison was the most surprised cow-puncher in the world when a shower of bullets threatened to admit daylight through the crown of his sombrero.

Believing that he was being attacked by Mexican bandits, he stopped short; wheeled around in the saddle and drew his gun. Just then the morning sun glinted on the badges of the sheriff's deputies.

Morrison surrendered to the officers. It required a vast amount of explaining to persuade the sheriff that the cattle rustling was for the silver screen and not for silver dol-

MANY ACCIDENTS

Why there are so many accidents in these days of modern machinery and improved methods of doing things, is a question for thoughtful ones to answer. Every newspaper contains column after column giving accounts of serious and often fatal accidents.

Most of these accidents are caused by automobiles and eleceric cars and just why there are so many is a wonder in the minds of men and women who have thus far been so fortunate as to escape serious accident.

OPENING OF BIDS

On November 24, 1919, the California Highway Commission opened bids for state highway construction in two sections of San Diego county and one in Del Norte county and Siskiyou county.

For the Siskiyou job R. C. Storrie & Co., San Francisco, bid in the sum of $235,300 and F. Rolandi, San Francisco, in the sum of $220,820. The engineer's estimate on this work, which lies between Weed and the southerly boundary of Siskiyou county, a total length of 18.2 miles, was $145,705.

Upon the ground that the bids of F. Rolandi and R. C. Storrie & Co. were excessively high, the commission rejected both.

On the Del Norte county job, about four miles in length, between Cushion Creek and Crescent City, Palmer and McBryde and Wilmshurst & Reedy were the bidders, Palmer & McBryde being the lowest in the sum of $49,037.10. Engineer's estimate, $32,537.10.

On the San Diego job, between Casbere ranch and Tecate Divide, about 13.8 miles in length, the bidders were Wright & Doran, San Diego, and Charles D. Soteras, Los Angeles, the former company being the lowest in the sum of $168,267.75. Engineer's estimate on this job was $194,157.15.

On the other San Diego county job from Pine valley to Casbere Ranch, a distance of 6.6 miles, the bidders were Maurice Ryan & Son, San Diego, and M. D. Goodbody, San Diego, the lowest bidder being M. D. Goodbody in the sum of $55,827.50. The engineer's estimate was $65,060,45.

The commission has taken under consideration the bids of the Del Norte and San Diego counties jobs with a view of modifying the contract in the former case, and is investigating the responsibility of the contractors.

IMPORTANT ROAD DECISION

The supreme court of the state of Arizona has decided in a test case that no part of the $4,000,000 bond issue voted by Maricopa county for highways can be used for the purchase of equipment or the operation of plants to furnish materials for construction of the roads, reports the Southwest Builder and Contractor. The entire amount must be expended for construction alone. The supreme court has also held that the county highway commission may make contracts for furnishing road materials separate from construction work and furnish materials to contractors.

The highway commission had planned to advance money to the board of supervisors for the construction of a rock crushing plant and for the purchase of a cement mill and to buy crushed rock and cement from the county at cost for the construction of all roads to be built under the bond issue. The test case hinged on the question of contracting with the county for crushed rock. The highway commission proposed to apply the $40,000 to be advanced for construction of a rock crushing plant on the purchase of rock. The county was to submit a bid in competition with private concerns, offering the rock at cost. The court held that inasmuch as there must be two parties to a contract, such an arrangement could not legally be considered a contract as the county would be in the paradoxical position of entering into a contract with itself

MACADAM ROAD IN ANTELOPE VALLEY

The road builders who have the contract to construct about 14 miles of macadam road between Lancaster and Redman in Antelope valley, have their preparations for the work well under way and operations will be started soon. The contractors have leased the Gill ranch a few miles out of Lancaster. Water will be piped from the ranch along the road. About four miles of industrial railway track have been laid and moterials will be distributed by a donkey engine and cars. The contract amounts to $218,000.

Where the Reclamation Work Begins

THE INTERIOR OF A TUBERCULOSIS CLINIC

The tuberculosis clinics of California rank among the best in the United States. They play a most important part in the fight being waged all over the United States against the White Plague.

In the clinics the work of saving the individual begins. Three general plans of action are followed: Home treatment with the care of a visiting nurse, treatment at the clinics, or, in the more advanced stages, hospital or sanitarium care. Children of tuberculous parents, who show a tendency toward tuberculosis or already have the disease in an early stage, are treated at the clinics and sent to the summer camps in order that they may be built up into strong, healthy boys and girls. This work is supported through the sale of Red Cress Christmas Seals.
